STATE'S SENTENCING MEMORANDUM

Assigned to the Hon. Warren J. Granville
Calendar CRJ-18

16
17 The State of Arizona respectfully recommends the following sentences:

- 18 • CR 2007-006276-001 DT – Count 11: Mitigated term of 10 years in the 19 Arizona Department of Corrections.
20 • CR 2007-007382-003 DT – Count 6: Five years supervised probation to 21 begin upon Defendant's outright release from the Arizona Department 22 of Corrections.
23 • CR 2007-008392-001 DT – Count 1: Presumptive term of 17 years in 24 the Arizona Department of Corrections, consecutive to Count 11 of CR 25 2007-006276-001 DT.
26 • CR 2007-008392-001 DT – Count 2: Lifetime probation to begin upon Defendant's outright release from the Arizona Department of Corrections.

1           I. Background

2           These cases were investigated by the United States Postal Inspection 3 Service, which initially received a complaint that an individual – later identified 4 as the Defendant – used a stolen identity to open a mailbox at a private mailbox 5 business in Scottsdale. That initial complaint eventually led to the arrests of four 6 individuals and the charges in the three captioned cases. It should be noted that it 7 was the Defendant’s flight from Inspectors investigating these crimes which led to 8 the car collision which spawned CR 2006-012794-001 DT.

9           The facts of each matter are as follows.

10           A. CR 2007-006276-001 DT

11           Victim James Meyer filed an identity theft complaint after he received 12 notices of debts totaling approximately $50,000.00 in his name. Investigation 13 showed that the Arizona Motor Vehicle Division had mailed a duplicate of Meyer’s 14 driver’s license to a Scottsdale private mail service in late January, 2006 (near the 15 beginning of the period when Meyer’s identity was taken). The Scottsdale 16 maildrop had been opened with fake drivers’ licenses bearing the photographs of a 17 man and woman, later determined to be the Defendant and Co-Defendant Marie 18 Siegel.

19           Investigation of the use of Meyer’s identity showed funds being distributed 20 to accounts opened in other identities. Most were from the Phoenix area, but one 21 was Deborah Bertleson of Pecos, Texas. Bertleson works at a prison there which 22 holds Arizona inmates. When interviewed, she recalled an inmate from Scottsdale 23 named Christopher Breiland. Inspectors pulled the photograph of the Defendant 24 from MVD, and matched the photograph on it to the photograph on the fake Meyer 25 driver’s license used to open the Scottsdale maildrop.

1           The Defendant was (at the time) escaped from the Arizona Department of 2 Corrections, so his whereabouts were unknown. Inspectors located a home in 3 Scottsdale owned by his parents, and conducted surveillance. They observed the 4 Defendant leaving the home in a bronze Nissan Altima. Inspectors attempted to 5 follow the vehicle, but lost it in traffic.

6           Inspectors then spent twelve days going to various apartment complexes in 7 the area where the vehicle was last seen, attempting to locate the Defendant. A 8 property manager at the Villa Encanto Apartment Complex immediately identified 9 the Defendant as an associate of Siegel, one of their tenants. She believed that the 10 Defendant was staying with Siegel, even though he was not on the lease.

11 Inspectors obtained a photograph of Siegel from MVD, and matched her to the 12 female photograph from the Scottsdale maildrop. Inspectors also observed the 13 bronze Altima parked in the space reserved for Siegel's apartment. The Altima 14 bore a stolen license plate, but a check of the VIN showed that the vehicle belonged 15 to Siegel.

16           Inspectors obtained a search warrant for Siegel's apartment and executed it 17 on April 19, 2006. Inside they found computers, an identification printing machine 18 (used to make plastic drivers' licenses), notes of account numbers and personal 19 identifying information, and numerous checks, credit cards and documents bearing 20 the names of the other victims in the case. Siegel and the Defendant were arrested 21 inside.

22           The Defendant waived his Miranda rights and denied everything: he denied 23 Siegel was his girlfriend, denied knowledge of false documents, denied using the 24 computers in the apartment. When he was asked if inspectors would find 25 identification documents with his photo, he responded, "You'll know soon enough." 26

1 He specifically denied using James Meyer’s identity. When shown surveillance 2 photographs clearly depicting him using the information during transactions at 3 stores and banks, he acknowledged that the pictures looked like him. He denied 4 using Deborah Bertleson’s identity – when confronted with her direct contact with 5 him while in Texas, he responded, “I can’t explain that.”

6 Siegel waived her rights, and told inspectors that the Defendant was her 7 boyfriend and that he had been living with her for six months. She was aware 8 that he had absconded from DOC, and said she had harbored him because, “When 9 you care about someone, you try to be supportive.” She admitted knowing that the 10 computers had been used to make identifications, and admitted that she had 11 permitted the Defendant to make an identification document with her picture.
12 She admitted using fake identification to open the Scottsdale maildrop. She 13 admitted opening Cingular accounts using Bertleson’s information, and said that 14 the Defendant had told her that Bertleson was a friend. She said that the 15 Defendant and she had discussed so many stolen identities that she could not 16 readily recall discussing any other single identity with him. She admitted she 17 had been with the Defendant on two occasions when he had stolen mail, and that 18 this was his likely his method for gathering information. She admitted using false 19 identification to purchase the computers at Best Buy.

20 Inspectors located a printed page in the computer room that was a depiction 21 of young females (under 13 years old) engaged in sexually exploitative activities.
22 Analysis later showed the Defendant’s fingerprint on this document. Inspectors 23 also found a handwritten list of websites that purport to show child pornography.
24 Analysis of the computers showed hundreds of deleted thumbnails of child 25 pornography, but very few stored images. Inspectors believe that the Defendants 26

1 were deleting the pictures from the computer, and the discovered images were 2 remnants left behind in the deletion process. Given that the computers were 3 purchased new by the Defendants and stored in their apartment, it is unlikely that 4 anyone else put the depictions there. No Trojan horse programs or viruses were 5 found. Other files found on the computers indicate that they were used by the 6 Defendant.

7 Siegel admitted writing the names of two of the websites on the list, and was 8 able to point out the two lines which were in her handwriting. She admitted she 9 knew there was child pornography on the computers. Siegel explained that the 10 child pornography would just “pop up” on the screen, and she and the Defendant 11 would simply write down the address of the site so they could report it to police.
12 Siegel said they had no idea where the pop ups were coming from. Inspectors 13 familiar with the distribution of child pornography have never encountered pop-up 14 advertisements featuring child pornography, and state that it is highly unlikely 15 child pornography websites would advertise in such a manner given the nature of 16 child pornography.

17 Siegel then volunteered that two houseguests had used the computer – Wes 18 Clancy and Michael Demes, who knew the Defendant from his time in the 19 Department of Corrections. She indicated that both were into child pornography, 20 and that they might be responsible for the depictions. Handwriting analysis 21 showed that Clancy did not write on the list of sites, and Demes was apparently in 22 MCSO custody during the relevant period of time. When interviewed, Clancy 23 stated that Siegel was on the computer all the time, and that Clancy had observed 24 the Defendant frequently backing up files to disks and wiping the memory of the 25 computer. He denied any knowledge of child pornography on the computer.

1           The Defendant was returned to the Department of Corrections while the 2 Inspectors completed their investigation. The Defendant later sent the Inspectors
3 a letter, asking to be re-interviewed. At the start of the interview, the Defendant 4 offered to cooperate if the case was submitted to the US Attorney's Office (likely 5 due to the more lenient Federal penalties for child pornography). When told that 6 the case would be submitted to the State, he said he would exhaust as much of the 7 taxpayers money as possible by vigorously defending each count against him. He 8 attempted to exonerate Siegel of the identity theft charges, claiming that she had 9 been an unwitting participant in his scheme. When the conversation turned to the 10 child pornography, the Defendant ceased cooperating. He later provided 11 handwriting samples pursuant to a Court order, but analysis of his handwriting 12 was inconclusive, likely due to attempts by the Defendant to mask his true 13 handwriting on the court-ordered exemplar form.

14           Co-Defendant Siegel entered a guilty plea to a sex offense in connection with 15 her joint possession of the child pornography and the handwritten list of child 16 pornography websites. She also entered a guilty plea to Attempted Forgery 17 related to her identity theft activities. She was sentenced to 1.5 years in the 18 Arizona Department of Corrections for the Attempted Forgery, and 15 years 19 probation for the sex offense. She will have to register as a sex offender for the 20 rest of her life.

21           B. CR 2007-007382-003 DT

22           After the previous investigation was concluded, the Defendant was indicted 23 and a warrant was issued for his arrest. The Defendant had absconded from bond 24 in Pinal County, and his whereabouts were unknown at that time.

25           Inspectors found that he had applied to rent an apartment under the name 26

1 Christopher Brown. Brown is an inmate in DOC until August 19, 2017, and was 2 in custody during the time that the apartment was rented. Inspectors found a 3 photo identification document presented by “Brown” that showed the Defendant’s 4 photo. They also found that the Defendant had opened a mailbox, had opened two 5 Wells Fargo bank accounts, obtained a valid Arizona driver’s license (on two 6 occasions), purchased a vehicle and purchased insurance – all in Brown’s name.

7 The vehicle, a 2003 Nissan Altima,<sup>1</sup> was purchased from Pinnacle Nissan 8 and financed through Fireside Thrift. After Inspectors contacted the dealer, the 9 dealer contacted the Defendant to request he come in for service on the vehicle.
10 On May 2, 2007, the Defendant appeared and was taken into custody along with a 11 passenger, co-Defendant Larue Smith. In the vehicle, agents found a number of 12 pieces of stolen mail, several Arizona driver’s licenses with Brown’s information, 13 profiles of victims and eleven grams of methamphetamine packaged for sale.

14 Victim Raquel Miller had previously contacted USPIS to report mail theft 15 and losses totaling $5,794.00 on a Macy’s card. Surveillance showed a woman 16 matching Smith’s description standing with the Defendant at the counter during 17 one of the five transactions. When questioned, Smith initially denied ever 18 shopping with the Defendant, but when confronted stated that the Defendant 19 informed her that victim Miller was his mother and that Smith was purchasing a 20 present for her. Smith claimed that the Defendant provided all of the information 21 used during the transaction, as he can be seen on the tape talking to the clerk.
22 This is disputed by the counter clerk, who states that Smith recited all the 23 information from memory, and produced an Arizona driver’s license with the 24 victim’s information and Smith’s picture. The clerk stated that the Defendant only 25

26 <sup>1</sup> This is a different vehicle than the Altima used by the Defendant in the CR 2007-006276-001 DT matter.

1 talked to the clerk in an attempt to distract her while Smith was talking to the 2 Macy's credit department on the phone. The bogus Arizona driver's license with 3 Miller's information and Smith's photograph was found in the Altima at the time 4 of Smith's arrest, but she denied any knowledge of it. Also, Smith was wearing the 5 watch purchased in the transaction at the time of her arrest, despite her claims 6 that the watch was for the Defendant's mother.

7 Smith expressed concern about the Defendant's involvement in other 8 criminal activity, and gave officers consent to search her apartment where she said
9 the Defendant had stored a number of things. Items found in the apartment 10 include a computer, a photo identification printer and the box for the watch worn 11 by Smith.

12 The Defendant was interviewed and confessed that he stole Victim Brown's 13 information from DOC and public records. He claimed to have been victim Miller's 14 accountant, a claim debunked in a follow-up interview with Miller. The Defendant 15 claimed that the drugs found in the car did not belong to Smith, but denied 16 possessing them himself. He blamed his troubles on the drugs, and claimed he 17 was cursed. He denied stealing any cars, but admitted using Brown's info to 18 purchase the car. The Defendant was shown and recognized a counterfeit check 19 deposited in an account opened in victim Miller's name. He denied knowledge that 20 a (second) watch purchased by Smith with victim Miller's info was on his wrist at 21 the time of his arrest.

22 The Defendant also denied any knowledge of a second handwritten list of 23 child pornography websites found in his possession (similar to the list found in his 24 possession on April 19, 2006 and referenced in the facts of the previous case). A 25 laptop in his possession was unable to be immediately analyzed due to encryption 26

1 (see CR 2007-008392-001 DT below).

2 Agents contacted a number of individuals whose email was found in the 3 Altima. Victim Deborah Broerman reported a $13,125.00 charge on her VISA
4 card. Records show this was done through a credit card 'access check' deposited 5 into a Desert Schools Federal Credit Union account opened in the Defendant's 6 name. No surveillance was maintained of the deposit, however over the following 7 10 days, surveillance showed the Defendant systematically withdrawing all of the 8 deposited funds.

9 After the search of Smith's apartment, co-Defendant Heather Maestas called 10 inspectors to inquire about property taken from Smith's apartment. Inspectors 11 questioned her and learned that she had also deposited a check drawn on Victim 12 Miller's account. This check was given to her by the Defendant, who had already 13 forged Maestas' signature on it. Despite her knowledge that the Defendant was 14 involved in fraud and counterfeiting of checks, she admitted cashing the check for 15 him and gave him approximately $13,000.00 in proceeds, keeping $95.00 herself to 16 cover outstanding fees she owed her bank.

17 Inspectors submitted this case for prosecution with a lab report containing 18 analysis of drugs seized during the arrest of the Defendant in the previous case on 19 April 19, 2006. These drugs – methamphetamines – were possessed in an amount 20 below the threshold. The methamphetamine found in the Altima during the May 21 2, 2007 arrest was in six separate baggies, which combined weighed 10 ounces.

22 Co-Defendant Maestas entered a guilty plea to the reduced charge of 23 Attempted Theft, a class 6 Open offense. She was sentenced to three years of 24 probation.

25 Co-Defendant Smith is scheduled to be sentenced on May 27, 2009 before 26

1 Judge Brnovich.

2 C. CR 2007-008392-001 DT

3 At the time of the Defendant's arrest on May 2, 2007, agents found a laptop
4 computer in the Defendant's possession. Upon examination, agents discovered 5 that the computer's hard drive was encrypted. Using software, agents broke the 6 encryption and gained access to the hard drive. On it, agents found several 7 depictions of child sexual exploitation:

- 8 1) one picture of victims aged 7 and 9 from a Washington state case
- 9 2) one video (technology to morph child pornography videos does not exist 10 at this time) of a victim under age 15
- 11 3) one video of a female victim under the age of 14
- 12 4) one picture of a victim age 6 from a German case
- 13 5-7) three pictures of victim from Belgium who was age 9 and 10 when the 14 photographs were taken
- 15 8) one photo of a victim from Austria who was age 8 and 9 when the 16 photographs were taken

17 Also in the Defendant's possession at the time of his arrest was a second 18 handwritten list of child pornography websites. Handwriting on this list is similar 19 to that found on the first list, taken during the search of the Defendant's residence 20 on April 19, 2006. The possession of two separate lists at two separate times 21 shows that each individual list was intentionally created and possessed by the 22 Defendant.

23 II. Rebuttal of Defense Arguments for Mitigation

24 The State observes that the Defendant has filed a Sentencing Memorandum 25 dated May 5, 2009, which makes several arguments in support of mitigated 26

1 sentences.

2 A. Age

3 First, it argued that the Defendant has reached an age where he is unlikely 4 to commit additional criminal activity. On the contrary, the Defendant has now 5 progressed from petty theft in his teenage years, to complex identity fraud and 6 sexual offenses. The Defendant's age would be mitigating if he were extremely 7 young, or if he was old and frail. This Defendant is in the prime of his life, and 8 will likely survive to see the end of his sentence. The Defendant has shown that – 9 with age – he progresses to greater criminal offenses. His age is not a mitigating 10 factor.

11 The Defendant argues that his substance abuse issues and mental health 12 issues are under control. The State sees no evidence that the Defendant's 13 substance abuse issues are under control. The Defendant, while escaped from 14 DOC, used methamphetamine and was under the influence of it when he was in 15 the car accident which resulted in the Maricopa County Attorney's case (CR 2006-16 012794-001 DT). After subsequently absconding from Pinal County, the 17 Defendant went on another meth-fueled crime bender. Any value that the 18 Defendant's sobriety may have while he is in custody is vastly outweighed by his 19 past record on the outside.

20 B. Mental Health

21 The Defendant's memorandum argues that the Defendant possesses mental 22 health issues which diminished his capacity to understand the wrongfulness of his 23 actions. The State doubts the diagnosis, or at least the underlying cause of the 24 symptoms observed by the evaluating physicians.

25 The Defendant, facing a lengthy stay in the Department of Corrections, is 26

1 understandably depressed. Just more than two years ago as the Defendant was 2 nearing his release from DOC, he chose to go on crime spree. Now, facing a prison
3 term that may encompass the rest of his life, the Defendant is understandably 4 depressed.

5         The Defense claims that the Defendant is suffering from Schizoaffective 6 Disorder, “a long standing mental health problem that had never before been 7 addressed.” Yet their supporting materials, provided to the State during 8 settlement negotiations, include multiple past examinations by experts in 9 Minnesota and Arizona which contain no diagnosis or symptoms similar to that 10 offered by the Defendant in his memorandum. They do contain a number of items 11 showing general antisocial behavior, but nothing that leads the State that this 12 case involves anything more than an occasionally-methamphetamine-using 13 Defendant depressed by his current circumstances. The State notes that the 14 Defendant, who would not have had easy access to methamphetamine or other 15 illegally drugs while in custody, did not manifest the symptoms of a diagnosable 16 disorder during his evaluations while he was in the Arizona Department of 17 Corrections.

18         The Defendant then argues a number of other non-statutory factors:

19         C. Genetic propensity toward mental illness

20         The diagnosis of a single family member (his brother) does not substitute for 21 a diagnosis of the Defendant.

22         D. Mental illness at the time of the crime

23         The Defendant’s mental illness, if any, was clearly secondary to his 24 methamphetamine abuse at the time of the offenses, according to the accounts 25 provided by witnesses.

1           E. Long Standing Substance Abuse Disorder / Addiction to Drugs and 2           Alcohol

3           While such factors may be relevant in the MCAO Aggravated Assault case, 4 the State does not recognize intoxication as a defense or mitigating factor to the 5 crime of fraud or the crime of child pornography possession.

6           F. Intoxication from Drugs and Alcohol at the Time of the Crime

7           As stated previously, the State does not recognize intoxication as a defense 8 or mitigating factor to the crime of fraud or the crime of child pornography 9 possession.

10          G. Family History of Drug/Alcohol Abuse

11          Documented abuse of alcohol by the Defendant's family, approximately 12 twenty years prior to the offense, bears little relevance to the crimes of fraud and 13 child pornography possession.

14          H. History of Family Tragedy

15          The Defendant claims that he feels responsible for the health problems of his 16 grandfather, mother and father. If his actions have had an effect on their health, 17 it is almost certainly because he keeps committing felonies and being sentenced to 18 prison. This is not a mitigating factor, but a fact of life: those who commit felonies 19 put a strain on their family members. The Defendant should receive no credit for 20 it.

21          I. Institutional Failure

22          The Defendant claims he never received adequate treatment for his 23 substance abuse or mental health condition. As argued previously, the State 24 reviewed a number of mental health evaluations of the Defendant, both from 25 Arizona and Minnesota, and he did not demonstrate the symptoms he now claims 26

1 to have. It is difficult to blame the corrections system for failure to recognize un-2 manifested symptoms. The State also finds it difficult to believe that the 3 Defendant, in his lengthy incarceration history, has never had the opportunity to 4 attend an Alcoholics Anonymous meeting, Narcotics Anonymous meeting, or any 5 other form of treatment. Such options are available to those who seek them out.
6 The State instead believes that the Defendant waited until he was released to 7 indulge his addiction.

8 J. Remorse

9 The State believes that remorse was late to arrive to the Defendant. This is 10 the same Defendant that promised investigators that he would exhaust as much of 11 the taxpayers' money as possible fighting these charges. He made that statement 12 while in custody, and while clean and sober. Only now when he is actually facing 13 punishment for those acts does he express what he calls remorse – something the 14 State regards as simply a re-labeled expression of self-pity.

15 The Defendant also cites his expression of concern for the children in the car 16 accident in CR 2006-012794-001 DT as an indication of his remorse. These would 17 be the same children whom the Defendant ran from at the time of the collision – 18 only after being chased as he fled from the scene of that collision was the 19 Defendant apprehended.

20 K. Loves and is Loved by Family and Friends

21 Family support may be a mitigating factor, but the State has observed little 22 family support the Defendant. The Defendant claims to have told them not to 23 come to court due to his embarrassment, and even indicates that he is unwilling to 24 discuss the child pornography offenses with his family – such that they express 25 doubt that he actually committed the offenses. The State questions their support, 26

1 and wonders if they are simply being manipulated by the Defendant.

2       The State notes that Defendant’s brother has attended court in support of 3 his girlfriend (Co-Defendant Maestas), but that co-Defendant has expressed regret 4 that the Defendant took advantage of her. There appears to be little love in that 5 relationship.

6       L. Risk Assessment Indicates Low Risk of Future Dangerousness

7       The State acknowledges the evaluation of Dr. Samuels, and his opinion as 8 outlined in the Defendant’s deviation memorandum. Dr. Samuels states that the 9 Defendant’s risk of recidivism is no higher than 19% over the next fifteen years.
10 The State would counter that the Defendant has already proven that he falls in 11 the 19% – he committed two separate child pornography offenses. The Defendant 12 had all of his child pornography seized after his first arrest, and then gathered 13 more before his second arrest. It is folly to argue that he won’t re-offend: the 14 Defendant has already proven he will.

15       The Defendant also argues that, “There is significant doubt as to [whether] it 16 was Mr. Breiland who actually downloaded the images on his computer, as the 17 computer was accessible by others.” This is irrelevant. The Defendant was 18 obviously present for the downloading of the child pornography, as he saw fit to 19 write down a ledger of his favorite child pornography websites. After that list and 20 his computer were seized by police, he somehow managed to get child pornography 21 on a second computer, and managed to assemble a second list of favorite child 22 pornography websites. No one would ever conclude that anyone other than the 23 Defendant collected the child pornography on those computers. To the extent the 24 Defendant wishes to make this an argument for mitigation, the State would 25 request that the Defendant instead seek to withdraw his plea and make his 26

1 arguments at trial.

2 M. Good Prospect for Rehabilitation

3 The Defendant argues that if treated with psychotropic medication and kept 4 away from illegal drugs, he is a good prospect for rehabilitation. Given the 5 Defendant's past record of escape, the State wonders if the Defendant will even 6 submit to supervision and treatment. He has shown no indication that he would 7 at any point in his past.

8 III. State's Argument in Support of its Recommendation

9 The Defendant faced forty felony charges which could have resulted in a 10 maximum of 701.25 years in the Arizona Department of Corrections. The State 11 offered a plea bargain to avoid the expense of a trial, and to avoid the pain and 12 inconvenience it would have caused to the victims.

13 That said, the arguments in favor of a lengthy prison sentence for the 14 Defendant are compelling. The Defendant will be sentenced on seven felonies, 15 brining the Defendant to a total of fifteen felonies on his record. His eight 16 previous convictions:

- 17 1) Hennepin County (Minnesota) case DC 93186. Convicted March 10, 14 seven years in the Arizona Department of Corrections.

- 15 7) Maricopa County case CR 1997-092260. Convicted July 27, 1999, of 16 Theft, a class 3 felony occurring May 26, 1997. Sentenced to six-and-17 one-half years in the Arizona Department of Corrections.
- 18 8) Pinal County case S-1100-CR-200601769. Convicted November 3, 19 2008, of Escape in the Second Degree, a class 5 felony. Sentenced to 20 four years the Arizona Department of Corrections. The sentencing 21 judge indicated that he would prefer that the term run concurrent to 22 any sentence for the pending matters before the Court today.

23 In his sentencing memorandum, the Defendant laments that he will be 24 unable to be reclassified as a lower risk inmate due to his escape conviction, and 25 that he will likely be uncomfortable in the maximum-security accommodations 26

1 afforded to inmates. This is a direct consequence of the Defendant's choices, and is 2 not something that should be considered a mitigating factor.

3 The Defendant's choices put him here before the Court for sentencing. The 4 Defendant may lament his parents' failing health, but he should instead be 5 lamenting the impact he had on his numerous identity theft victims. He should 6 also be lamenting the abuse documented in the child pornography pictures he 7 possessed on two separate occasions. The Defendant's memorandum claims that 8 he "blames no one but himself" while arguing that, "There is significant doubt as to 9 [whether] it was Mr. Breiland who actually downloaded the images on his 10 computer, as the computer was accessible by others."

11 The Defendant is simply depressed about being caught, and is disappointed 12 that he is being brought to justice for his actions. The consequences for an eight-13 time (now fifteen-time) felon should be severe.

14 The State has stipulated to a mitigated sentence in CR 2006-006276-001 DT, 15 and the plea agreement stipulates that the mitigating factor which supports that 16 finding is the Defendant's past history of mental illness. The State has been made 17 aware that the Adult Probation Department (APD) is requesting a presumptive 18 term for this offense. The State asks that the Court follow the terms of the plea 19 agreement.

20 The State has alleged only one aggravating factor in CR 2007-008392-001
21 DT – the Defendant's prior felony convictions within the previous ten years – 22 which is more than sufficient to balance the Defendant's claimed mitigation. As 23 such, the Court should order a presumptive term of seventeen years for Count 1.

24 The State has been made aware that APD objects to the concurrent grants of 25 probation in CR 2007-007382-003 DT and CR 2007-008392-001 DT (Count 2).

1 Specifically, APD is recommending a term in the Department of Corrections for CR
2 2007-007382-003 DT. The State believes that the concurrent grants of probation 3 are important, as it will essentially allow two separate stints on probation. If the 4 Defendant violates his probation upon release, he can be sent to prison for CR
5 2007-007382-003 DT, and still be on probation for CR 2007-008392-001 DT (Count 6 2) upon his release. Without the concurrent grants of probation, any revocation to 7 DOC would mean that upon his release the Defendant would not be supervised by 8 APD. The State asks that the Court follow the terms of the plea.

9 IV. Conclusion

10 There are two genuine issues for the Court to decide at sentencing relative to 11 the length of sentence:

12 1) Should the Court reject the plea agreements as recommended by APD?

13 No, the Court should follow the terms of the plea agreements.

14 2) Should the Court find mitigation and sentence the Defendant to 10 years 15 on CR 2007-008392-001 DT (Count 1), for a total sentence of 20 years?

16 No, the State believes that the Defendant's mitigation arguments ring 17 hollow and that his prior felony record is sufficient to balance out the 18 mitigating factors to support a presumptive sentence of 17 years on CR 19 2007-008392-001 DT (Count 1), for a total sentence of 27 years.
